Question 1: What kinds of clothes do people in your country typically wear?
Do they wear different clothes for work or for play?

Answer:
People in Vietnam wear different clothes for different occasions. For casual days, it's often jeans and T-shirts. Special events might call for traditional outfits like ao dai for women and ao gam for men. Work attire tends to be more formal. Weather influences clothing choices, with lighter clothes for hot days.

Question 2: What kinds of clothes do you like to wear personally?
What kind of fashion style do you prefer?
What are you wearing today?
Give me all the details about your fashion style.

Answer:
I like wearing comfortable clothes. Usually, I go for jeans or casual pants with a T-shirt or a simple shirt. I prefer a laid-back and relaxed style. Today, I'm wearing blue jeans with a white T-shirt. I find it easygoing and suitable for most occasions. Comfort is key for me when it comes to fashion.

Question 3: Fashion is always changing.
Tell me about the kinds of clothes that were popular when you were younger.
What did fashion styles look like back then?
How were they different from what is popular now?

Answer:
When I was young, baggy clothes and bright colors were cool. Logos and big brands were in, and everyone loved sneakers and hats. Now, it seems people prefer fitted and simple styles with neutral colors. Fashion sure has changed!

Question 4: Tell me about the last time you bought a new piece of clothing.
What did you need to buy and where did you find it?
Were there any challenges or problems?
Give me all the details.

Answer:
I recently needed new jeans, so I went to a nearby store. It took a bit to find the right fit, and I had to try on a few pairs. Eventually, I found the perfect one, but it took some time. Overall, it was a successful shopping trip!
