Question 1: Tell me about how people get around in your country.
Do they drive their own cars or take trains?
What are some typical means of transportation to get around?

Answer:
In my country, people use different ways to go places. Many ride motorbikes, which are easy and popular. Public buses are also common, especially in cities. Taxis and services like Grab are available for a more comfortable ride. Trains and planes are used for longer trips between cities. There are many ways to travel, so people can choose what's best for them.

Question 2: What means of transportation do you use to get around? Do you drive your own car or take public transportation?

Answer:
I usually drive my car to get around. It's convenient and helps me go wherever I want, whenever I want. Occasionally, I use public transportation like buses for longer trips or when I don't want to deal with traffic. Overall, having my own car gives me the flexibility I need.

Question 3: How did you travel when you were a child?
Were the types of transportation different back then?
Describe for me how people used to get around in your city or town.

Answer:
When I was a kid, we usually went places in cars or took the bus for longer trips. Bikes were common too, especially for short rides. In our neighborhood, walking and biking were the usual ways to get around. There weren't as many cars, so it felt like everyone knew each other.

Question 4: Problems related to transportation often arise.
Cars break down, trains run late or traffic could get bad.
Tell me about a transportation problem that you once had.
What did you do to deal with the situation?

Answer:
One day, my car stopped working while I was on my way to work. It was annoying because I was already running late. I called for help, and a nice person passing by helped me start the car again. It was a relief, and I eventually made it to work. This made me realize the importance of being ready for unexpected car issues.
