Question 1: Tell me about the banks in your country.
What do they typically look like?
Where are they usually located?

Answer:
Banks in Vietnam are where people go for money stuff. They're in buildings in cities and towns. Inside, you talk to bank people at counters, and outside, there are machines for quick money. Banks help with putting in money, taking out money, and managing accounts. They're a big deal for money things in the country

Question 2: Tell me about what goes on when you visit the bank. What do you do from the moment you walk in until you walk out?

Answer:
When I go to the bank, I wait in line and then talk to a bank worker. I might deposit or take out money. If I need help, I ask. Sometimes, I use the machines outside. When I finish, I leave. It's where I handle my money stuff.

Question 3: Banks have definitely changed over time.
Tell me about a bank you remember from your childhood.
What did the bank look like?
How was it different from banks today?

Answer:
When I was a kid, the bank looked kind of old. It had tellers behind windows, and we had to fill out forms for transactions. There were no machines for quick things. It felt more formal. Now, banks look modern, with lots of machines and screens. It's easier and faster than when I was little.

Question 4: Sometimes, problems can occur when you are at the bank.
Tell me about a problem you had that involved your bank.
Maybe the bank was closed or perhaps the bank might have made some kind of mistake.
Tell me how you dealt with that problem.

Answer:
Once, I went to the bank to withdraw money, but the ATM was out of order. It was frustrating because I needed cash urgently. I went inside the bank and spoke to a staff member. They apologized and helped me with the withdrawal at the counter. It took a bit longer, but they were friendly and sorted out the issue.
